Tipping Rigby Alderman of the City of London

Tipping Rigby married Maria Serjeant the 3 September 1771 at St Olave Old Jewry and the Rev Henry Rigby in his Will named her as Mary Anne the widow of my late brother Tipping Rigby Alderman of London.

GM Obituary 7 February 1803 After a very short illness in consequence of a violent cold which he caught by officially attending the sessions at the Old Bailey aged 56 or 57 Tipping Rigby esq alderman of Castle Baynard Ward. He was the youngest of the five sons of a respectable clergyman of Buckingham descended from an ancient family in Northamptonshire where they were settled more than 200 years. Few men have passed through life with a fairer or more amiable character. So great was the confidence reposed in him by his fellow citizens that they chose him one of their representatives in the Common Council 26 yrs successively. In this situation he conducted himself with so much prudence and moderation that notwithstanding the political turbulence of the times, he was so fortunate as to give satisfaction to all parties. On the death of the late Mitford Young esq in 1802 he was appointed Deputy of his Ward. The resignation of Sir William Herne very soon after afforded his friends another opportunity of shewing how much they were attached to him. By their active and zealous exertions he was elected alderman almost without opposition: three hands only of the numerous voters assembled on the day of election were held up in favour of his opponent, though that opponent was a man of very large fortune and of the greatest respectability. But these last civic honours so handsomely conferred upon him were but of short duration, he scarcely enjoying them six months. He married Miss Serjeant a West India lady who brought him a handsome fortune. By her who survives him, he has left three sons and two daughters having had several other children who died in their infancy.
